Elis was phenomenal to work with. She understands veterans and their unique background that makes them successful entrepreneurs. She helped me understand those strengths and feel more comfortable with my own ability to succeed. You truly feel like you have someone trustworthy in your corner to help you when you're working with her. It was refreshing to have someone that's been through the same experiences and made it successfully. I look forward to working with her again when it's time for me to start that next chapter in my career and recommend her to anyone else that is considering entrepreneurship after military service. Thanks for all your help Elis!

If success is measured in positivity, dedication, and a resounding commitment to forward progress then Elis has reached the pinnacle. Over the past seven months, I've been privileged to garner her unwavering support as a coach who listened to our family's goals and helped us set them in motion. I've had coaches in the past, but none exemplified Elis' focus. Through her passion to serve and active listening, we were able to identify a unique business opportunity that will enrich our family for years to come. I can't say enough good things about Elis' style and commitment. I highly recommend her to anyone looking for a dedicated coach who will work as hard as you do to help obtain "the art of the possible."
